

TUBE CROSSING POINTS

Once we've traced a path that we think might be a knot, we need to check which line is above/underneath at any crossing points.

Use the table below to look up the order of the underground lines that cross at each underground station.

TOP  BOTTOM

Station	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
Stockwell	Black	Light Blue
London Bridge	Black	Silver
Bank	Red	Black
Moorgate	Pink/Yellow/ Purple	Black
King's Cross St Pancras	Pink/Yellow/ Purple	Light Blue	Dark Blue	Black
Euston	Light Blue	Black
Warren Street	Light Blue	Black
Tottenham Court Road	Red	Black
Leicester Square	Black	Dark Blue
Charing Cross	Black and Brown run parallel to each other, at the same level. A Black/Brown change is not a crossing.
Embankment	Black and Brown run parallel to each other and at the same level. Yellow/Green runs over them both.
Waterloo	Black and Brown run parallel to each other and at the same level. The Silver runs underneath them both.
Light Blue	Yellow/Green	Light Blue

Green Park	Light Blue	Silver	Dark Blue
Oxford Circus	Light Blue	Brown	Red
Westminster	Yellow/Green	Silver
Bond Street	Red	Silver
Baker Street	Pink/Yellow/ Purple	Silver	Brown

West Ham	Pink/Green	Silver

Notes:

We've not considered the DLR (light green with empty middle stripe) and London Overground (orange with empty middle stripe) in the crossing points information above. Just use just the other underground lines in your knots.

You can also assume that if a line begins/ends at a particular station, then a change on to that line at that station doesn't require crossing another line.
